Possible Organ Replacement

The PCC has been giving thought to replacing the present organ with an 1856 instrument of recognised historic merit by organ builders Gray & Davison. Three or four organ builders are being invited to discuss current proposals and submit a quotation. Two have visited so far. The second report is awaited.

The Diocesan Advisory Committee is lending its support. An independent school has expressed keen interest in our present organ.

"This is very exciting and positive news! You have such a fine acoustic there, that a Gray and Davison instrument would be a real asset. At the same time, it is good to know that the Compton could go to an appreciative home as well."

David Aprahamian Liddle (local organist & recitalist)
